1. When will my Joint Program Centennial courses start after the labour disruption?
Centennial courses resumed on Tuesday, November 21, 2017. Due to the impact of the disruption to studies, the Centennial College Fall term will be extended until January 12, 2018 following a break from December 22 – January 2, 2018. Winter courses at Centennial College will begin on January 22, 2018.

For students enrolled in both Fall 2017 Centennial College courses and Fall 2017 U of T Scarborough courses this may create an overlap with scheduling for Fall 2017 U of T Scarborough final examinations and Fall 2017 Centennial College classes. If this is the case for you please see FAQ #10 below.

For students enrolled in both Fall 2017 Centennial courses and Fall 2017 U of T Scarborough courses this will create an overlap with scheduling in the first week of the Winter term. If you anticipate that you will encounter a timetable conflict due to this overlap, please seek the advice of your Joint Program advisor, program advisor, the Academic Advising & Career Centre or the staff at the Office of the Registrar. As a result of the later start to the Winter term, Joint Program students will have a deadline of January 29, 2018 to add Winter 2018 courses at Centennial.
2. Which courses have been impacted by the strike?
Students who are currently enrolled in Fall session courses taught on the Centennial College campus are impacted. The courses are:

- JOUA06H3
- JOUB11H3
- JOUB14H3
- JOUB18H3
- JOUC13H3
- JOUC16Y3
- JOUC17H3
- JOUC25H3
- NMEA01H3
- NMEA02H3
- NMEA03H3
- NMEA04H3
- PMDB22H3
- PMDB25H3
- PMDB33H3
- PMDB41H3
- PMDC40H3
- PMDC42Y3
- PMDC43H3

3. I have questions about my course. Who should I speak with?
Contact the instructor of the course if you have inquiries about the content or need support catching up on the material. If you have questions about your program, please contact your program supervisor and/or the Centennial College Chairperson.

4. When will I have my grades so I can make a decision about my Winter 2018 courses?
Your final grades for courses impacted by the strike will be available on January 17, 2018 on ACORN. We ask that you monitor your grades closely so that you can make an informed decision and modify any selections if you need to by the extended deadline to add Winter 2018 Joint Program Centennial courses, January 29, 2018.
5. Have drop dates for my Centennial or U of T Scarborough courses changed?

Drop dates for all U of T Scarborough courses remain the same. For Joint Program students enrolled in Fall 2017 Centennial College courses that did not meet during the period of the strike, the deadline to withdraw from one of these courses without academic penalty will be December 15, 2017. You may request this by submitting a petition on eService. When submitting the petition, you can select the option to ‘drop a course after the academic deadline’ and identify in the text space provided that you wish to drop one or more Joint Program Centennial College courses because of the labour disruption that impacted your Centennial course(s).

6. Will I be eligible for a course refund if I want to withdraw from my program due to the strike?

U of T Scarborough Joint Program students enrolled in Fall 2017 courses that did not meet during the period of the strike who conclude that they must withdraw entirely from the Joint Program as a result of the strike will be eligible for a refund from the university of tuition paid for Fall 2017 Joint Program courses. The deadline to choose this option is December 5, 2017. You may request this by submitting a petition on eService. When submitting the petition, you can select the option to ‘drop a course after the academic deadline’ on eService and identify in the text space provided that you wish to withdraw entirely from the Joint Program as a result of the labour disruption that impacted your program.

Withdrawing from such a competitive program is a big decision and one that should not be undertaken lightly by only considering the financial impact. Students are strongly advised to seek academic support, from the Office of the Registrar or the Academic Advising & Career Centre, before choosing this option. In some cases, it may be possible to be re-admitted to the program at a later date but students contemplating this should consult with their program supervisor.

7. Am I eligible for any other strike reimbursement funds?

Centennial College has established two funds to help students deal with the challenges resulting from the five-week faculty strike. Joint Program students are eligible for these funds.

The Flight Reimbursement Fund helps students pay costs related to changes to flights booked prior to November 6, 2017. To qualify for this fund, students must elect to complete the Fall 2017 semester (extended to end January 12, 2018). Students who complete the Fall 2017 semester are also eligible for the Student Strike Relief Fund. Students who opt for Full Withdrawal from a Joint Program and Tuition Refund do not qualify.

The Student Strike Relief Fund helps students with unexpected costs (other than flight changes) that students will have incurred due to the Fall 2017 academic semester (December 18-22, January 2-12). To qualify for this fund, students must elect to complete the Fall 2017 semester (extended to end January 12, 2018). Students who complete the Fall 2017 semester are eligible for the Flight Reimbursement Fund. Students who opt for Full Withdrawal from a Joint Program and Tuition Refund do not qualify.

8. What are the refund dates if I drop any of my Centennial Joint Program Winter 2018 courses?

9. Can I do a late withdrawal (LWD) for any of my Fall 2017 Centennial courses due to the strike?

Due to the adjustment of Fall 2017 term dates for Centennial courses, we have extended the Late Withdrawal (LWD) deadline for the F courses listed in item 2 above to January 12, 2018. Since this is after the published deadline for LWD requests, U of T Scarborough students in Joint Programs must request this by submitting a petition on eService.

10. What if my Centennial courses conflict with my U of T Scarborough final exams?

If you have a timetable conflict between a U of T Scarborough final exam and a Centennial College course, you may be eligible to petition on eService for a deferred exam. We recommend that you start by seeking advice from your Joint Program supervisor, the Academic Advising & Career Centre or staff at the Office of the Registrar. Students will be asked to provide their course and exam schedule in their petition statement. Every effort will be made to schedule your deferred exam during the December UTSC exam period or, if necessary, on Saturday January 6, 2018 and the regular deferred examination fee will not be applied. Your petition for a deferred exam for this reason must be submitted by 11:59pm Sunday Dec. 3, 2017. Please note that the Academic Advising & Career Centre and the Office of the Registrar at the U of T Scarborough will be closed from December 20 until January 3.

Updated November 29, 2017

11. I am an international student and concerned about how any of this may impact my status. Please visit the International Student Centre for advice on your own personal circumstances.
